AROUND THE SEC

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW

It's been Alabama's offense - not the defense - that has been the talk of this season's Crimson Tide team for a variety of reasons. Ole Miss has some talent on defense, led by the front four. That's the group that will have the most pressure on it to perform in order to try to slow down an Alabama attack that has been tough to stop this season. To pull the upset with College GameDay in town for the first time at The Grove, Robert Nkemdiche and company will need to have a big game.

Another huge win for Miss. State?

Dan Mullen's Bulldogs took a big step towards respectability in the SEC West with a huge win over LSU. They can take another step towards being a major contender with a win over Texas A&M Saturday.

by: Wes Mitchell

Huge opportunity for Ole Miss

Mississippi State already has a marquee win. In what could be a huge -- or hugely disappointing -- day for the state, Ole Miss will look to shake up the entire West with a win over Alabama.

Will LSU start 0-2?

The Tigers aren't used to starting 0-2 in the SEC, but they face another set of Tigers, in Auburn, this week that are fully capable of giving them their second SEC loss of the season.

SEC PLAYER YOU SHOULD KNOW

Texas A&M is going up against arguably its toughest opponent yet, at least on the defensive side of things. Mississippi State's front seven has been lauded time and time again, and for good reason. That means Kenny Hill is going to be throwing above and around the Bulldogs' D, and he'll be looking for his big play receiver. Reynolds leads the team with five receiving touchdowns and averages 21 yards per catch.

PREPARE LIKE A CHAMPION

3:30 ON CGBS SPORTS

by: Avery Wilks

This matchup of 4-0 SEC West teams is the most appealing in a long list of great games this weekend. Alabama proved itself as one of the best teams in college football with its 42-21 destruction of Florida two weeks ago, and the Crimson Tide have had an extra week to prepare for this game. But the Rebels have been impressive as well, knocking off Boise State and Vanderbilt to start the season. This one has all the makings of a defensive struggle, as Ole Miss allows just 8.5 points per game and the Tide allows 14. On paper and in highlight film, Alabama appears to have the upper hand, but the game will be played in Oxford, where the Rebels have won three straight games and seven out of eight. Don't be surprised if Ole Miss wins the party and the football game on Saturday.

WHO WE'LL BE WATCHING

RIXON LANE

The Spartans defeated the Cornhuskers for the first time ever last season, and Nebraska is looking for revenge. Michigan State's run defense will be tested by senior tailback Ameer Abdullah, who ran for 208 yards in Nebraska's win last week against Illinois.

CHRIS CLARK

7:00 ON ESPN

USC's next SEC opponent after UK is Auburn on the road, a tough game. The Tigers have a couple difficult ones leading up to the clash with the Gamecocks too, hosting LSU and then going to Starkville. LSU has shown weaknesses this season, but can the Tigers roll into The Plains and pull off a big road win?

WES MITCHELL

12:00 ON ESPN

This is the rare top tier SEC matchup that takes place at noon, which makes for an excellent kickoff to a great day of top matchups around the conference and country. A&M is actually the underdog here. The winner stays alive in the uber-competitive SEC West.

AARON WEISS

Option attack showdown! Air Force currently averages 323 yards on the ground per game, good for sixth in the nation. It's impressive, but nothing compared to the 358 yards Navy's second-ranked rushing attack averages. It'll be a footrace to see who will win the Commander-in-Chief's Trophy.

DAMIERE BYRD

Senior Wide Receiver

Senior receiver Damiere Byrd hasn't had the season he - or most anyone, for that matter - expected. Through five games, he has just four catches, though two of them went for touchdowns, and 114 yards. And his involvement in USC's offense has declined since he caught 33 passes for 575 yards and four touchdowns a year ago. Fortunately for Byrd, the Gamecocks' next opponent has had trouble stopping him. The speedy wideout caught five passes for 98 yards and a touchdown in a victory over Kentucky last season, the bulk of it coming on a play where he scorched the Wildcats' secondary for a 62-yard score. Byrd also totaled 69 yards and a touchdown against Kentucky in his first two seasons at USC, and will look to kick his senior campaign into gear in Lexington against the Wildcats, who rank third in the conference in passing defense.

KNOW YOUR OPPONENT

BLAKE BONE

Freshman Wide Receiver

by: Rixon Lane

Bone is only a true freshman, but he enters Saturday as the top big-play threat in Kentucky's passing attack. Although he has just five catches on the year, Bone is leading the Wildcats with 22.6 yards per reception. While he is primarily a deep-ball threat, Bone can also run after the catch; his only touchdown of the season came on a 29-yard screen pass.

VEGAS REPORT

The Wynn in Las Vegas opened South Carolina as a 10-point favorite, but it adjusted the number down to 7.5 in less than two hours. By lunch in the Eastern time zone on Monday, the line was seven and went down to six by 2 p.m. USC was favored by 5.5 or five by Monday night. Since then, the line has wavered at various spots between 4.5, five and 5.5. The total was released at 55 late Tuesday night. Gamblers can take the Wildcats on the money line for a +175 return (risk $100 to win $175).

PREDICTIONS

Wes Mitchell

South Carolina has won some ugly games in Kentucky, but the key is it usually find a way to win. Kentucky is improved, but the Gamecocks should still be able to get back on the winning track against the Wildcats.

Rixon Lane

South Carolina's defense will face a pass-happy offense for the first time since ECU and will try to prove that last weekend's performance wasn't a fluke. Expect an ugly game and another too-close-for-comfort victory for the Gamecocks.

Jeff Tyner

My first trip back to Lexington since 2010, ugh. I'm not sure which USC team will show up, but I'm going to guess that Mike Davis has his first "early 2013 Mike Davis" game of the season.

Aaron Weiss

I'm not going to enjoy watching this game, especially the first half. I see Kentucky getting the early lead, but USC's defense picking off a pass or two from gunslinger Patrick Towles after the half.

Paris Palmer

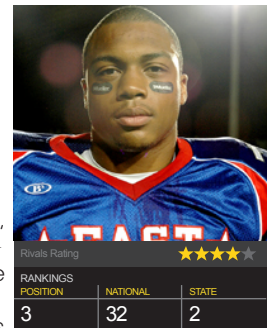

Offensive Tackle
6'8" 305 lbs.
Scranton, PA
#9 on Rivals JUCO 100

Offensive tackle was a big need position for the Gamecock staff in the 2015 cycle, and with over four months remaining until signing day, the class is already filled out on that front. Leading the way is Palmer, a junior college prospect with great size (6-foot-8 and over 300 pounds) and a big upside. As a January enrollee, he will be counted on to push for playing time immediately. The athletic lineman, with his size and skill set, is one that could be considered to have substantial NFL potential.

TIMECAPSULE

CLIFF MATTHEWS

Weakside Defensive End

#32 on Rivals100

"Huge upside. Has a very quick first step, which makes him dangerous in pass-rushing situations. Has a tall, lean frame with which he will be able to easily add weight. A good all-around athlete who is also a standout basketball player, he likely will need a year or two to develop and get stronger before approaching his full potential at the collegiate level." — Rivals.com 06/19/2006

PLUFF MUD BROWNIES

WHEN YOU NEED A SWEET ENDING, PLUFF MUD BROWNIES ARE THE WAY TO GO

by: Ann Thrash

Let's make this short and sweet: Last week's game didn't leave a very good taste in anybody's mouth. In the spirit of moving in a new direction, this week's tailgating recipe heads over to the sweet side of the table. These Pluff Mud Brownies are pure, frosted, marshmallow- fluff-filled decadence. They take their name from the thick, gooey mud that is a trademark of the South Carolina Lowcountry's waterways.

These brownies are great to have around during the fourth quarter, either to soothe your sorrows or (let's hope) celebrate a big finish.

DABO OF THE WEEK

"I see someone else is a fan of extra starch in their polos!"

INGREDIENTS

2 sticks butter, at room temp.
2 cups sugar
1/3 cup unsweetened cocoa powder
4 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla extract
1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1 cup chopped pecans
- lightly toasted (optional)
1 (7-oz.) jar marshmallow fluff

DIRECTIONS

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Grease a jellyroll pan (about 15x10x1 inches). To make the brownies: In a large bowl, use an electric mixer to cream together the butter and the sugar, then beat in the cocoa, eggs, vanilla and flour. Stir in the nuts. Spread the mixture (it will be very thick) in the prepared pan and bake for 25 minutes. Remove from oven and let cool on a wire rack for 10 minutes, then, while brownies are still warm, spread all the marshmallow fluff over the top. Let stand until completely cool.

Meanwhile, make the frosting: In a large mixing bowl, using an electric mixer, blend the butter, cocoa, vanilla and 1/3 cup of the milk. Gradually beat in the powdered sugar, beating until the frosting is thick and smooth. Add the remaining milk slowly if needed; the frosting should be thick but still spreadable. Stir in the nuts. Spread the frosting over the brownies. Cut into larger squares (about 3x3) to serve on plates, or cut smaller to eat out of hand.

Ace Sanders WR #18

He's back! After serving his four-game suspension, Ace is ready to get back on the field for the struggling Jags. With injuries once again plaguing the receiving corps in Jacksonville, the team can surely use the talents of Sanders, who stepped up last season with 51 catches for 484 yards and one touchdown.

GAMECOCK STAFF CONTEMPLATES USING PHAROH COOPER AT EVERY POSITION

In an effort to light a spark under his team, USC head coach Steve Spurrier told assembled reporters today that he's contemplating using Pharoh Cooper at every position on the field.

"We've tried him at wide receiver, quarterback and punt returner, but obviously we're sitting here with two losses," Spurrier said. "But anyway, we might need to see what he can do at tight end, running back, right guard or center, also."

Defensive coordinator Lorenzo Ward later added that "we took a long look at him at Mike linebacker during practice this morning. We want our playmakers on the field."

Ward noted that the defensive staff had also given Cooper some practice reps at weakside linebacker, spur, both safety spots, defensive end and cornerback.

"We probably won't use him at defensive tackle because we do want to keep him fresh," Ward said.

When asked if Cooper, who has been nursing a nagging injury, would be unable to go this week against Kentucky, Spurrier said in such a scenario that Cooper would have a role in sideline reporting for the Gamecock Radio Network and may also be calling plays for both the offense and defense.

STOOPS ADMITS HE WAS SURPRISED TO LEARN UK WAS IN SEC WHEN HE TOOK JOB

University of Kentucky head coach Mark Stoops told an ESPN Radio team earlier this week that he was stunned to learn the Wildcats were in the Southeastern Conference when he arrived in Lexington to accept the head coaching job.

"I got to the press conference announcing my hiring, and I was so excited to finally be a head coach," Stoops said. "Then I was walking up to the podium and noticed an SEC logo behind the dais. It was shocking."

Stoops said he leaned over and whispered to the UK athletic director to confirm that Kentucky was indeed a member of the SEC.

"It was too late to run at that point, but obviously this wasn't what I expected," Stoops said. "Looking at their highlights over the years and seeing the team, fans, atmosphere and everything else, I thought this program was in the MAC or maybe the American Athletic Conference. Never in my wildest dreams did I think I was going to be playing eight SEC teams every year."

"The goal was just to become a head coach and then parlay it into a real job somewhere like SMU or San Jose State or something," Stoops continued. "I need to research these opportunities a little more carefully from now on."

EPIDEMIC OF HUGGING PLAGUES MALES IN SOUTH CAROLINA

In the wake of USC's shocking, last-minute loss to Missouri last week, men of all ages throughout the state of South Carolina have begun hugging to console each other.

"We don't know what to do to stop it," said Dr. Carter Huggins of the Center for Disease Control. "It's not just fathers hugging sons or brothers hugging brothers, it's everybody. Should South Carolina lose this weekend in Lexington, we may not be able to turn back the tide on this disease."

"I walked into my office on Monday and hugged my boss for about a minute," said Steve Wilson, an employee at a technology company in Myrtle Beach. "And I hate my boss. He just looked so sad. I was sad, too. It just felt like the right thing to do."

An Associated Press poll this week found that eight in 10 males throughout the state reported hugging someone on Sunday or Monday this week, and that 95 percent of them had never hugged another human being before.
