WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW

It wouldn't be fair to talk about Arkansas' front five only, given that Bret Bielema seems to have 40 guys on the line of scrimmage to help run block at times. The Razorbacks want to run it often, and Mississippi State has a stout defensive front. If Arkansas is to finally earn that elusive conference victory and in upset fashion, it will be by finally breaking through and having some success against the Bulldogs by hitting some big plays on the ground.

BO WALLACE

Ole Miss Senior QB

by: Aaron Weiss

Is Bo Wallace a great quarterback? Probably not. Very probably not. He looked pretty bad against LSU, and against much tougher competition this weekend in Auburn, it's going to be a rough outing. Even if Ole Miss' defense does the job - albeit without Denzel "The Other" Nkemdiche - Wallace is the top talent on Ole Miss' offense. No Bo means no win for the Rebels.

SEC HEADLINE

by: Wes Mitchell

The biggest storyline in the SEC this week has to be Saturday night's showdown between Ole Miss and Auburn, considering both teams made the cut for the top four in the newly released College Football Playoff rankings. With Ole Miss losing to LSU last week in dramatic fashion and Auburn falling to Mississippi State three weeks ago, both teams already have one loss, resulting in what essentially could be an elimination game for the playoff. Ole Miss, which is at home, is favored in the game, but by a small margin.

PREPARE LIKE A CHAMPION

7 P.M. ON ESPN

by: Avery Wilks

It's not a stretch to imagine every "marquee matchup" for the rest of the season coming from the SEC West. This game is yet another battle of Western division giants, one that includes two one-loss teams that are still in the thick of the division title hunt as well as the race to the College Football Playoff. Auburn flexed some muscle on offense last week in beating South Carolina 42-35, while Ole Miss is coming off its first loss of the season, a 10-7 heartbreaker at LSU. This matchup pits one of the nation's top rushing offenses in Auburn against the country's best defense in Ole Miss. The Tigers average 281 yards per game on the ground, but may lack running room against the Rebels "Land Shark" defense, which gives up just 10.5 points per game. Auburn beat Ole Miss by one score last season at Jordan-Hare Stadium on its way to the national championship game. With a much-improved Rebels team on its own turf Saturday night, it's safe to expect this one to come down to the wire.

WHO WE'LL BE WATCHING

RIXON LANE

10 P.M. ON ESPN

The Bruins were a preseason national-title candidate, but now they're in danger of losing three consecutive home games for the first time since 1971. Quarterback Brett Hundley is second in the nation in completion percentage and leading an offense averaging over 35 points per game, but UCLA will have to find a way to stop Rich Rod's high-octane Wildcats.

CHRIS CLARK

3:30 ON abc / ESPN 2

Points, and lots of them. One typically thinks of Gary Patterson and his Horned Frogs as a defensive team, but after hanging a basketball score on Texas Tech last weekend (and 58 points against Baylor, too), that notion is gone. These guys can score, and so can Dana Holgorsen's Red-Bulld counterparts from Morgantown. This game shouldn't lack for excitement.

WES MITCHELL

(10/30) 7:30 ON ESPN

We generally don't include Thursday games, because by the time most of you read the GameDayGuide, this one is already over with. That said, this is easily one of the most intriguing matchups of the week-end as FSU goes on the road in what is the toughest contest of its remaining games. This one has playoff implications.

AARON WEISS

3:30 ON CBS SPORTS

For as hot garbage as Florida has been, both the players and the fans care a great deal about this rivalry. Georgia will look to dominate and prove they deserve to be talked about as much as any SEC West team. Florida, on the other hand, will look to win by any means necessary, and that means turning to the defense.

ELLIOTT FRY

Sophomore Placekicker

Tennessee's losses to Georgia and Florida this season each came down to a field goal or less, and there's no reason to think South Carolina is assured of victory by a wider margin over the Volunteers. Fortunately for the Gamecocks, they can trust placekicker Elliott Fry to deliver a game-winning field goal if necessary. Fry, a sophomore and former walk-on, has been remarkably consistent this season, connecting on 12 of his 13 field goals - his only miss came on a 54-yard attempt against Texas A&M - and converting each of his 35 extra point attempts. His 92.3 percent field goal success rate is the best of any SEC kicker with more than one attempt. If USC's offense stalls in Tennessee territory on Saturday, as it did so many times when Fry accounted for 13 points in a defensive struggle against Florida last season, head coach Steve Spurrier will have no qualms about calling on No. 29 to finish the job.

KNOW YOUR OPPONENT

JALEN HURD

Freshman Running Back

by: Rixon Lane

The Volunteers gained 181 yards on the ground against Alabama, and Hurd was a big reason. The freshman averaged nearly 4 yards per attempt and showed his versatility by leading Tennessee with six catches for 27 yards. Hurd ran for 119 yards and a touchdown against Georgia, and with the Vols' uncertainty at the quarterback position, don't be surprised if Butch Jones decides to feed his freshman tailback.

VEGAS REPORT

Most offshore betting shops opened South Carolina as an eight-point home favorite vs. Tennessee this past Sunday. On Tuesday, the number was reduced to seven, while most spots started the 'over/under' total at 56. As of late Wednesday morning, the Gamecocks were still favored by seven with the total slightly adjusted to 56.5. Gamblers can take the Volunteers on the money line for a +230 payout (risk $100 to win $230).

PREDICTIONS

Wes Mitchell

South Carolina is going to have a lead in this one; the question is, can it hold it? This season hasn't gone the way most expect, but I still like the Gamecocks to outscore Tennessee at home.

Rixon Lane

A revenge matchup for South Carolina at night in Williams-Brice after an impressive showing on the road against a top-five team. All signs seem to point towards a Gamecock victory. But, then again, I predicted 28 points for Auburn last weekend, so what do I know?

Jeff Tyner

Although a non-Justin Worley quarterback makes me a bit nervous, I think last week's loss actually helped the Gamecocks remember what playing good feels like.

Aaron Weiss

What is it about playing teams from Tennessee that always result in ugly, ugly games, regardless of if the Gamecocks win or lose? I don't expect this one to be any different.

Big corners are en vogue, and this South Florida standout fits that bill. Arnette is 6-foot-2 and plays a hybrid defensive back/linebacker position in high school, but he could make the transition to cover corner in college for USC. While still raw overall, Arnette has the size and skill set to be a good one at the next level. Other programs continue to give chase, but Arnette appears solid in his commitment to the Gamecocks.

CHILLY WEATHER CALLS FOR SPICY CHILI TO WARM UP TAILGATING TIME

by: Ann Thrash

It's going to be downright chilly at Williams-Brice when the Vols come to town on Saturday night – the afternoon high is supposed to be in the upper 50s, last we heard. That means it's time to break out the jackets, and also time to break out the chili recipes.

Chili might not have been on your gameday menu yet this year, but with the weather being so mild, that's understandable. A hot bowl of spicy, beefy chili on Aug. 28 might have ratcheted up the misery index even before Texas A&M took the field. But it sounds just right now, as November arrives, with the team wearing black and looking, as defensive tackle Gerald Dixon Jr. put it, "to try to get the W back" that they gave up at Tennessee last year.

Just as with last week's recipe for short ribs, you can turn to your slow cooker not only to prepare this meal, but to keep it warm while you're tailgating.

SPICY SLOW-COOKER CHILI

INGREDIENTS

- 3 tbsp. vegetable oil
- 2 lg. sweet onions - medium dice
- 1 lg. red bell pepper - medium dice
- 6 garlic cloves - finely chopped
- ¼ cup chili powder
- 1 tbsp. ground cumin
- 2 lbs. lean ground beef
- 1 (28 oz.) can diced tomatoes
- 1 (14 oz.) can tomato sauce
- 2 (15 oz.) can kidney beans - drained and rinsed
- ¼ cup pickled jalapenos - coarsely chopped - (can sub. green chiles)
- Optional Toppings
  - shredded Mexican-blend cheese
  - sour cream
  - thinly sliced green onions

DIRECTIONS

Heat the oil in a large frying pan over medium heat until shimmering. Add the onions and bell pepper, season with a pinch of salt, and cook, stirring occasionally, until softened, about 8 minutes.

Add the garlic, chili powder and cumin. Stir to coat the vegetables in the spices and cook until fragrant, about a minute. Add the ground beef and about a teaspoon of salt and cook, breaking the meat into small pieces with a wooden spoon, until the beef is no longer pink, about 7 minutes.

Transfer the mixture to the slow cooker. Add the diced tomatoes and their juices, the tomato sauce and the beans. Stir to combine. Cover and cook until the chili thickens and the flavors bend, about 5 hours on high or 8 hours on low. Stir in the jalapenos or green chilies. Taste and adjust seasonings as needed. Serve with the assorted toppings of choice. Makes about 6 servings.

Two Gamecocks who are desperately trying to play bigger roles will be on the field Sunday afternoon in Cincy. T.J. Johnson has only seen action in one game for the Bengals this season while working his way back from a preseason injury, while Ace Sanders continues to try to make an impact for the Jaguars after serving a four-game suspension to begin the season. ## GAMECOCKS, VOLS WILL ATTEMPT TO OUT-BLACKOUT EACH OTHER SATURDAY

BY SCOTT DAVIS

Image from volnation.com

Upon learning that South Carolina may try to ignite its sagging season by wearing all-black uniforms Saturday night, Tennessee head coach Butch Jones suggested his squad would respond by suiting up in "even blacker" uniforms. "When it comes to uniforms, we're not going to get out-blackened by anybody," Jones said. "If they want to wear black, fine. We'll just wear a darker shade of black. This is the Southeastern Conference. We're not going to carry a knife into a gunfight."

"From what I've seen, Gamecock fans care about uniforms more than most fans do, so we know that crowd will be fired up," Jones continued. "We've got to respond accordingly. If they think black jerseys and pants scare us, wait until they see us come out with black socks and gloves. When you're 0-4 in the SEC like we are, you've got to pull out all the stops."

When it was suggested to Jones that black was not a core color for Tennessee, he responded that it "kinda, sorta is" because ex-Vols coach Lane Kiffin occasionally wore a black windbreaker on the sidelines. "We'll get a graphic designer in here to make sure our jerseys are at least six or seven shades blacker than theirs," Jones said. "If they go pitch black on us, we'll just invent a color that's darker."

VOL BAND MEMBERS DEPRESSED THEY CAN ONLY PLAY "ROCKY TOP" 6,000 TIMES PER GAME

In a sign that the once-proud Tennessee football program has fallen on hard times, UT band officials admitted this week that the Pride of the Southland is playing "Rocky Top" an average of just 6,000 times per game in 2014, down from 40,000 per game during Tennessee's national championship run in 1998.

"We're only playing it after every down now," whispered a visibly upset Bernard Jones, a senior band member from Memphis. "In the glory days, we'd play it even when our quarterback was sacked or we gave up an interception for a touchdown. But at this point, our offense actually has to gain a yard or two of positive yardage for us to start playing it. It's sad what's happening around here."

While opposing fans once had suicidal thoughts after hearing "Rocky Top" so many times during games against the Vols, Jones shamefully admitted that Tennessee's foes "aren't even seeking counseling now. We've lost the war."
